Project Talk Trial Update

DID YOU KNOW?

92% of Americans think it's important to discuss their end-of-life wishes. Yet only 32% have actually shared their wishes. (The Conversation Project survey, 2018)

Don't miss this opportunity to bring an advance care planning event to your community. Project Talk Trial is a 5-year randomized controlled research initiative funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

Be one of 75 communities to host a Project Talk event for underserved populations, which include racial and ethnic minorities, low-income, and rural populations.

Help us reach more rural community organizations!

FAQs

What is the deadline to apply?

Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis so you may apply at any time.
Apply now!

What is the timeline for hosting an event?

We ask that selected hosts arrange their event within 7 – 8 months of acceptance.

Can I host an event in Spanish?

Yes, provided there is at least one bilingual host/planning team member who will lead the event.

- A Spanish-speaking project assistant will attend the event, with an English-speaking research assistant, to introduce the project, conduct research procedures, and interface with host and participants.
- The bilingual host/planning team member must be present for the entire event.

All attendee materials are available in Spanish.

What expenses will the stipend cover?

The $300 host stipend can be used by host organizations to support staff time, food, and marketing for their events.
